

STUDENT: Where does the name Rhine derive from?

TEACHER: ⇨ Gaulish name Rnos

STUDENT: What is the French name for the Rhine?

TEACHER: ⇨ Rhin

STUDENT: What is the Proto-Germanic adaptation of the name of the Rhine?

TEACHER: ⇨ Rnaz

STUDENT: What century did the name of the Rhine come from?

TEACHER: ⇨ 1st century BC

STUDENT: What does the name The Rhine come from?

TEACHER: ⇨ Gaulish name Rnos

STUDENT: What is the Rhine called in French?

TEACHER: ⇨ Rhin

STUDENT: What is the Proto-Germanic adoption of the Gaulish name of the Rhine?

TEACHER: ⇨ Rnaz

STUDENT: What is the Rhine called in Dutch?

TEACHER: ⇨ Rijn

Section:Rhine1

Context: The variant forms of the name of the Rhine in modern languages are all derived from the Gaulish name Rnos, which was adapted in Roman-era geography (1st century BC) as Greek (Rhnos), Latin Rhenus.[note 3] The spelling with Rh- in English Rhine as well as in German Rhein and French Rhin is due to the influence of Greek orthography, while the vocalisation -i- is due to the Proto-Germanic adoption of the Gaulish name as *Rnaz, via Old Frankish giving Old English Rn, Old High German Rn, Dutch Rijn (formerly also spelled Rhijn)). The diphthong in modern German Rhein (also adopted in Romansh Rein, Rain) is a Central German development of the early modern period, the Alemannic name R(n) retaining the older vocalism,[note 4] as does Ripuarian Rhing, while Palatine has diphthongized Rhei, Rhoi. Spanish is with French in adopting the Germanic vocalism Rin-, while Italian, Occitan and Portuguese retain the Latin Ren-. CANNOTANSWER

STUDENT: How was the Dutch name for the Rhine originally spelled?

TEACHER: ↩ Rhijn

STUDENT: Where are the variant forms of the name of the Rhine in ancient languages derived from?

TEACHER: ↩ CANNOTANSWER

STUDENT: What century did the Germanic vocalism Rin come from?

TEACHER: ↩ CANNOTANSWER

STUDENT: What century did the spelling with Rh- in English Rhine come from?

TEACHER: ↩ CANNOTANSWER

STUDENT: What century did the French adopt the Germanic vocalism Rin-?

TEACHER: ↩ CANNOTANSWER