

Section:Economic inequality36

Context: In many poor and developing countries much land and housing is held outside the formal or legal property ownership registration system. Much unregistered property is held in informal form through various associations and other arrangements. Reasons for extra-legal ownership include excessive bureaucratic red tape in buying property and building, In some countries it can take over 200 steps and up to 14 years to build on government land. Other causes of extra-legal property are failures to notarize transaction documents or having documents notarized but failing to have them recorded with the official agency. CANNOTANSWER

STUDENT: What is held outside the formal legal ownership registration system in many developing countries?

TEACHER: ⇨ "" (much land and housing)

STUDENT: How is unregistered property held in informal form?

TEACHER: ⇨ "" (through various associations and other arrangements)

STUDENT: Excessive bureaucratic red tape is one of the reasons for what type of ownership?

TEACHER: ⇨ "" (extra-legal)

STUDENT: In some countries over how many steps can it take to build on government land?

TEACHER: ⇨ "" (200)

STUDENT: What can it sometimes take up to 14 years to get permission to build on?

TEACHER: ⇨ "" (government land)

STUDENT: What is held inside the formal legal ownership registration system in many developing countries?

TEACHER: ⇨ "" (CANNOTANSWER)

STUDENT: How is registered property held in informal form?

TEACHER: ⇨ "" (CANNOTANSWER)

STUDENT: Excessive bureaucratic red tape isn't one of the reasons for what type of ownership?

TEACHER: ⇨ "" (CANNOTANSWER)

STUDENT: In all countries over how many steps can it take to build on government land?

TEACHER: ⇨ "" (CANNOTANSWER)

STUDENT: What can it sometimes take up to 41 years to get permission to build on?

TEACHER: ⇨ "" (CANNOTANSWER)